

Write a REPORT with a word count of 4,000 words (excluding list of references and any appendices).

The Brief

Awareness of sustainability issues is growing among businesses, customers, communities and legislators. As a result, sustainability has become increasingly important for many companies in recent years, forcing changes to logistics and operations. New policies, new business models, technologies and investments have been the result.

How have logistics and operations management changed? In your report you are required to answer All three sections, A, B and C. You are expected to use company examples to support your report. These companies could be manufacturing, retail or services.

A) Identify only ONE particular sustainability issue (examples from such as Procurement, Transportation, Circular Economy, etc.

B) Discuss the process of adaptation as companies alter their strategies in response to sustainability concerns. Use at least THREE of these topics, themes like sustainable warehousing, circular economy, green product design, responsible procurement, etc. Your report must address the potential costs and benefits of adaptation while pursuing their Logistics and Operations strategies.

C) Using any TWO examples of the United Nations Sustainability Development Goals, critically discuss how companies are adopting these goals in support of their management practices whilst caring out logistics operations. For critical argument, ALL selected SDGs, must be mapped against at least One for each of the family leadership guiding questions found here:

Myve the UN's Blueprint for business

<https://blueprint.unglobalcompact.org/sdgs/sdg01/>

Sources and References

It is important for you to conduct a comprehensive literature review of your chosen topics and industry. You should include sources such as peer-reviewed academic articles, academic texts, news articles, industry case studies and reputable web resources. The literature should be used to support your statements.

Additional guidance:

A good report will be well formatted and presented using an academic style of English. Please do not simply describe changes that have taken place, but provide some insights into the possible thinking behind, and justification of, changing strategies, processes, roles and responsibilities.